CYBERBULLYING

Mert registered for a study group created by his guidance counselor through an application using his mother's phone and started following his school assignments there. The purpose of this group was for parents to exchange information about their children's homeworks. One day, while Mert was researching about his homework on his mother's phone, he suddenly saw a message from this homework group. In this message, he witnessed his friends sharing sarcastic comments about his payments. Mert was very upset by these messages, but he did not respond either. It was the first time she had ever been involved in such a thing, and she didn't want her mother to know that her friends were making fun of her. The next day, Mert, who was also subjected to the same sarcastic remarks at school, felt overwhelmed and deeply upset. He realized that he should share his feelings with his family. After school, he told his mother about the situation. Concerned, his mother reached out to Mert's guidance counselor and asked for help in resolving the issue. When Mert went to school the next day, his friends, who had mocked him, came to Mert with embarrassment and apologized to Mert, saying that "what they wanted to do was actually a joke, they just wanted to have some fun, they didn't actually want to upset anyone, they regretted it very much". Mert told his friends, "In such situations, jokes should not be made. Even if it is meant as a joke, this is still bullying. It can upset children our age and negatively affect their school performance. If they promise never to make such a joke to anyone again, he will accept their apology." His friends promised Mert that they would never make such a harmful joke again, and the issue was resolved peacefully. Mert and his friends started to play together again and everyone happily continued their school life.

FLAG ITEMS THAT THREATEN YOUR SAFETY

THE LEGEND OF TROY

Burak was a hardworking 5th-grade middle school student. After completing his homework, he would get permission from his family to play online games with his friends. One day, while playing, he noticed that something was wrong with his computer. The game had slowed down significantly, and he was unable to control his computer properly. Feeling anxious and unsure of what to do, Burak decided to research the issue on the internet. During his search, he came across hundreds of different types of viruses, but one of them closely resembled the issue he was experiencing on his computer. The virus was called the "Trojan Virus. Burak was confident that he had taken the security precautions of his computer.

However, when he saw this virus, which caused a similar problem to the problem on his computer, he continued to research the virus in order to get detailed information. As a result of his research, he learned that this virus can infect computers at unexpected moments.

He understood that no matter how strong a firewall was, this virus could infect the computer by downloading a single wrong application. At this time, a story told in Social Studies class came to his mind and he realized at that moment that it was very similar to the situation he was experiencing.

It was the story of the "Trojan Legend" that his teacher told. Many years ago, there was a kingdom called "Troy" with high walls. The people living here felt very happy and safe. But one day, an event rained down that would disturb the peace of the Trojan Kingdom, and one of the other kingdoms, jealous of the safe life behind the walls, cried against the Trojans.

This kingdom could not break through the strong walls of the Trojans for months, and after a long time they came up with a plan. The first step of this plan was to retreat from the city of Troy. Then he made a wooden statue of a horse filled with soldiers and left it at the gate of the castle. As a matter of fact, they carried out the plan as they thought.

Thus, seeing the magnitude of the gift, the Trojans carried this enormous horse to the castle as a trophy of victory. The Trojans thought they had won the war and organized a great entertainment. After the celebration, the exhausted people fell asleep early. Seeing that the soldiers inside the castle were sleeping, the enemies hidden in the horse took advantage of this opportunity. He opened the gates of the castle to the enemies who were secretly waiting outside. The Trojans soon had to surrender the castle to the enemy before they realized what was happening.

Burak also thought that his own computer was very well protected. But just like in this Trojan legend story, his computer was infected with a virus without him realizing it. From now on, he aimed to take all precautions so that his computer would not be like the Trojans. On top of that, he immediately installed antivirus programs on his computer. He did not neglect to update the programs frequently. He did not download an application from any site that he did not know and was not sure of its reliability.

REMEMBER! Without the permission of your family, you will download from sites that you are not sure of the reliability of the member, except for official store apps can hijack your device without you noticing, like the soldiers who used the Trojan horse in the Trojan myth to break into the kingdom.

Check out the images.

Tell the right actions and get them round.
